wounded. While treating casualties, the Aid station came under a terrific barrage, and all three medical officers were injured, plus a total of 13 EM during the morning. one ambulance from the 46th Med Bn was knocked out. Eventually the Aid Station was moved from its position in the open on the edge of town into a group of farm buildings two hundred yards away. The old area was still being shelled intermittently. There was rain during the morning, two friendly air corps came over a few times during the morning and strafed enemy positions. There was still heavy shelling around the town but not too much was falling in the vicinity of of the new aid station, except for an occasional round. Capt Austin remained on duty although slightly wounded. He went back to the clearing station for a few minutes and had his wounds treated when the excitement ceased but returned immediately. An urgent call was sent out for replacements in
